Summary of CV

This section describes briefly a summary of your career in science, academic and research; the main scientific and technological achievements and goals in your line of research in the medium -and long- term. It also includes other important aspects or peculiarities.

Santiago González-Fuente is a researcher and a teacher in the field of Linguistics, specifically in Prosody and Pragmatics. He has two Degrees in Hispanic Philology and Linguistics from the University of Barcelona (both awarded with an extraordinary prize); a Master in Phonetics and Phonology from the UIMP-CSIC (obtaining the highest grade in the TFM), and a Doctorate in Translation and Language Sciences from the University Pompeu Fabra from Barcelona (qualified with a Sobresaliente cum laude and later awarded the Extraordinary Doctorate Award).

During the last decade he has been developing his research and teaching career in several universities and research centers. As a teacher, he has taught subjects in the field of Linguistics — Phonetics and phonology, General Linguistics, Spanish Language, Sounds and intonation — in the degrees of Translation and Applied Languages and in the Master in Theoretical and Applied Linguistics at the UPF, as well as in the Degree in Speech Therapy and in the Master's in Learning Difficulties and Language Disorders of the Open University of Catalonia (UOC). He has also organized and participated at several seminars and workshops focused on tools for transcription of oral corpus or statistics for the social sciences, as, for example, at the CLiC (Centro de Lingüística Computacional) of the UB or at the CIESE-Comillas of Universidad de Cantabria. As a researcher, he is a member of the Group for the Study of Prosody (GrEP) of the UPF, a consolidated research group that studies, from a cognitive perspective, the role that prosody and gesture play in the process of human communication. His areas of interest are mainly in the interface between audiovisual prosody and pragmatics --specifically, irony--, in the acquisition of first and second languages and in the description of negation processes in natural languages.

He has been part of research teams and participated in several subsidized projects at the aforementioned UPF and UOC, as well as at the Polytechnic University of Catalonia, the University of Barcelona and the CNRS of Lyon. He is the author of numerous scientific contributions, as, on the one hand, the publication of articles in magazines of recognized international prestige—Journal of Pragmatics, Frontiers in Psychology, Studies in Second Language Acquisition, The Linguistic Review, among others— and , on the other hand, the presentation of lectures and communications in international conferences —Phonetics and Phonology in Europe (2017, Cologne), Speech Prosody (2016, Boston), Tone and Intonation in Europe (2016, Canterbury), International Conference on Second Language Speech (2016, Aarhus), General Linguistics International Conference

(2016, Alcalá de Henares), International Pragmatics Conference (2015, Antwerp), Child Language Symposium (2015, Coventry), among others. Currently, she works as a teacher and researcher in the Philology Department of the University of Cantabria as a Substitute Associate Professor, as well as in the Psychology Department of the Open University of Catalonia as a Collaborating Professor.

Goals of the stay: Doctorate

Provable tasks: The stay was approved and financed within the grant program FPU/2012/05893 y it took place between the months of April and June of the second year of the doctorate, that is, in 2015. The L2C2-CNRS de Lyon is one of the most prestigious centers internationally in the study of cognitive bases and neural networks of language. From that stay came a close collaboration with the director of the center and prestigious scientist, Dr. Ira Noveck, which crystallized in the presentation of a communication (and in the publication of an article, consigned both in previous sections) in the Speech Prosody Congress 2016, which took place at Boston University in 2016.

Narrative explanation: Publicación de un artículo y presentación en un prestigioso congreso internacional (Speech Prosody 2016, en Boston)
